Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.This book is about theory and the use of theory to develop doctrine. In light of the dramatic capabilities envisioned for the Objective Force, the organized U.S. military mechanism of physical coercion, and the dynamic operational environment that characterizes the world of 2002, land and naval theory is examined, investigated and analyzed. A common perception is that maritime strategy and land strategy exist in discrete and separate spheres of knowledge. However, closer analysis demonstrates that they do not exist as independent areas of study, rather, they are merely divisions in the overall art of war. To develop and illustrate this concept, a general overview of the future threat/operational environment and the proposed characteristics and capabilities of the U.S. Army's Objective Force are presented. Manifest from this description of the Objective Force and the future threat, an apparent analogy between the Objective Force and a naval force becomes evident, even while it is increasingly apparent that technological advances are blurring the traditional distinctions between the divisions in the art of war - between land, sea and air warfare. The functional divisions are becoming less distinct, increasingly interrelated and integrated. Through this analogy to maritime operations, the following two constructs or paradigms are proposed to help guide the development of doctrine in the theoretical employment of the U.S. Army's Objective Force. 1. The object or goal of Objective Force warfare is command of the white space, in other words, freedom of action. Objective Force commanders must act to retain and preserve freedom of action. This must be the theoretical basis for all doctrine. 2. The corollary of this is to preserve the force in being. Objective Force commanders...
