By Rhetta G Carroll

Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 216 x 140 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The animal overpopulation problem in this country is much greater than any of us could ever imagine. It is somewhat of a hidden world. Those in rescue see it. This book attempts to give us all a true perspective of the situation. We all need to know, by working together we can make changes for these beloved creatures. We all don t have to volunteer and donate. This book explains that by educating each other on how to keep the population down, we can make a difference. It also gives advice on what to consider before adopting a pet, what to look for and where to look when adopting a pet, and the responsibility that comes with it. Training tips are also included. This book would be a good resource for those who may be considering adopting a pet. In the beginning of the book there is a small section that contains a few short stories, that are intended to educate children in a gentle way about the overpopulation problem and the responsibility of having a pet. Although...
