Excerpt: . to the drudgery of drawing at this time, and the gelding to have been but little used. It is suggested indeed, that our clergy formerly rode upon mares. Of the custom of our clergy formerly, (as to riding) see Bede, Eccl. Hist. 1. Hi. c. 14. 1. rv. c.3. and that they first began to ride on mares. Ibid. l. H. c. 13. unless there be some error in the print says the late Garter, Mr. Anstis the Father, in that curious paper of his inserted in Dr. Fiddes s Collections to the Life of Cardinal tVolsy. Now the reading in Bede is undoubted, for it is not only confirmed by that most authentic manuscript used by Dr. Smith in his sine edition of the Author, but also by the Saxon version. Henry of Huntingdon, moreover, writing from this passage, gives the fame,...
